I completed a comprehensive HTML, CSS, and JavaScript program at Bethel Tech, where I learned the fundamentals of web development. This hands-on course included practical coding projects that challenged me to create responsive and visually appealing websites. I learned how to use HTML to structure content, CSS for styling and layout, and JavaScript to add interactivity and improve user experience. Collaboration with peers and real-world assignments helped me develop problem-solving abilities and an understanding of best practices in modern web design.
